The Air Force Attacks Its Number One Problem

BY BRIG. GEN. R. H. CARMICHAEL, USAF
Deputy Director, Personnel Procurement and Training

MUCH has been said and written recently about the number one problem in the Air Force. Stated very simply, it is the scheduled expiration of term of service of some 200,000 airmen during this fiscal year. The dollar cost of this loss to the taxpayer has been estimated to be about two billion dollars. The effect on operational effectiveness of the Air Force due to the loss of trained and skilled personnel is obvious and needs no further elaboration.

Brig. Gen. Carmichael

The critical nature of the problem was first highlighted by the Secretary of the Air Force to senior Air Force Commanders last May at the Commanders Conference at Eglin. Shortly after, in a personal letter to each Major Commander, the Chief of Staff stressed the importance of the problem and requested recommended actions which the Commander believed would aid in obtaining and maintaining an optimum reenlistment rate.

In attacking the problem at Headquarters USAF level, six specific objectives were initially established to be accomplished by 1 Jan., 1955. Basic in nature, the objectives were designed to provide a framework for the future, around which we could organize, prepare and equip ourselves for a comprehensive attack Air Force-wide.

The remainder of this article is devoted to the present status of the Air Force Reenlistment Program as it pertains to the following specific objectives:

First, centralize USAF Headquarters activity in all matters affecting reenlistment;

Second, systematize and control the collection and distribution of facts and ideas Air Force-wide;

Third, unify and coordinate major command actions;

Fourth, develop a master reenlistment plan for calendar year 1955;

Fifth, collect, analyze and act upon facts and ideas now available; and Sixth, organize an information program to reach the personnel of the USAF and the public in general.

To centralize the reenlistment function

GENERAL WILLIAM M. HOGE, Commander in Chief of U. S. Army, Europe, confers with Assistant Secretary of Defense Franklin G. Floete, following the Secretary's arrival in Heidelberg on an inspection tour of housing units under construction in Germany. Secretary Floete is in charge of Defense Department properties and installations.

SECDEF WILL GET PAY HIKE PLAN

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson soon will receive the final report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Military Pay under RADM. Henry C. Bruton, USN, which will recommend pay increases for scores of thousands of military personnel. The Committee does not recommend, however, an across-the-board percentage increase.

Its proposals are designed to encourage retention of career personnel. Yet to be decided is how many, if any, other legislative proposals affecting military remuneration, such as rehabilitation pay for Reservists, changes in hazardous duty pay, change of station allowances, per diem increases, etc., will be included in the pay adjustment plan.

Overall, the pay picture appears to be what it has been for months. If the Administration flashes the green light for a pay boost to civilian employees of the Government, it will also approve a military pay increase.

Completion of Extension Courses May Be Made Requirement for AF Promotions

Completion of specified courses of study with the USAF Extension Course Institute, in lieu of actual residence courses at the Air University, may be made a requirement for promotion in the Air Force, if recommendations now under Pentagon study are approved.

Should the step be taken, it most likely will be applied first to Reserve officers and later to Regulars.

Four basic, general courses are offered by the ECI—an Officer Candidate course, the Squadron and Field Officer Courses of the Air Command and Staff School, and the Air War College Course. In addition there are now 30 specialized and technical courses in progress with 218 more planned.

One new course soon to be offered will be the first extension course for Air Force Chaplains. Air chaplains now attend the Army's Chaplains School at Ft. Slocum, N. Y., but it is felt that a great many more chaplains, particularly those in the Reserves, could be reached if an extension course were available. An 11-volume course, it probably will be ready about the first of the year.

The Extension Course Institute, an activity of the Air University, has headquarters at Gunter AFB, Ala., and is commanded by Col. Merrill A. Kempton, a Reserve officer with wide experience in education. He was formerly head of the Speech and English division of the Idaho College of Education.

Just this month the ECI enrolled its 100,000th student, the highest number in its four-year history. In spite of this

Army Gets Ready For Four-Star Shift

Secretary Robert T. Stevens can be expected to announce shortly a forthcoming realignment of the Army's top command in Europe.

And there's a good chance also he will make a statement before the end of November on the status of General Matthew B. Ridgway, Chief of Staff, who will reach the age of 60 next March.

The shifts of Army commanders in Europe will be set in motion by the prospective retirement, probably in January, of General William M. Hoge, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Army Europe.

Secretary Stevens undoubtedly will designate Lt. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, present commander of the Seventh Army in Germany, to succeed General Hoge in the four-star billet.

There's considerable speculation that one of the corps commanders in Germany, Lt. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, VII Corps, or Lt. Gen. Charles E. Hart, V Corps, may be moved up to head the Seventh Army.

Between Generals Hodes and Hart, the former is seen the more likely choice in view of seniority and more recent experience in a high field army post, that

Seek Loan Decision, Coast Guard First

The Defense Department has called upon the Capehart Committee of the Senate, which handled the Servicemen's home loan benefits legislation, to advise whether or not it was the intent of Congress to include military personnel who bought homes before enactment of the new law.

Defense spokesmen say that the legislation is not clear on this matter.

If the decision should be favorable, thousands of Service personnel would be eligible, should they so desire, to refinance their homes to take advantage of possible reduced interest charges.

Meantime, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps are rushing to completion necessary regulations which will permit awarding of certificates of eligibility no later than 15 November, as specified by Defense Secretary Charles

MARINE CORPS LISTS SWAG PICKS

The Marine Corps has released names of 565 Reserve officers who have been given active duty contracts of one to five years and revealed that a second SWAG board will meet in March 1955.

The first Standard Written Agreement Board chose two colonels, 13 lieutenant colonels, 158 majors, 293 captains, 449 first lieutenants, 28 second lieutenants, 22 chief warrant officers and one warrant officer for retention. The majority of Agreements went to officers who will serve in the Reserve program or who have critical specialties needed in the Regular establishment.

(Names are published on the next page)

Marine Corps Will Release Two Thousand Reserve Officers by End of Fiscal Year

More than two thousand active duty Marine Corps Reserve officers will go back to civilian life during the next eight months.

No releases, Marine Corps Headquarters said, will be involuntary. All of the officers will go to inactive duty as their present terms of service expire.

An official statement from HQMC said "Those Reserve officers whose prescribed terms of active duty expire between now and 30 June 1955, and whose services are not required beyond that date, cannot be retained on active duty beyond the expiration date specified in individual orders."

During the same period, however, the Marine Corps will bring to active duty some 1700 additional Reserve officers. Thus, the cut in overall officer strength will amount to less than 600.

At present (as of 31 August) the Corps has approximately 7,361 Reserve officers on active duty. This number will be reduced before the beginning of the new fiscal year (1 July 1955) to 6,800—a cut of 561 officers from present strength. However, 1700 additional officers will have to be released as their terms expire to make room for the 1700 Reservists who will be ordered to active duty between 1 Nov. of this year and 30 June 1955.

Last June, Headquarters announced that Marine Corps needs would permit very few Reserve officers, except those possessing critically needed military skills, to remain on active duty after 30 June 1955. No Reservist who will qualify for 20-year retirement by virtue of an additional two years' active service will be released from active duty except by his own request, Headquarters said.

Marine Corps spokesmen reiterated that the releases do not constitute an involuntary release program. Reservists who will be separated from active duty are those who fall into one of three categories:

1—Those who complete their contracted periods of active service;

2—Those who request release to inactive duty, and

3—Those who twice fail of selection for promotion when considered by active duty boards.

The Marine Corps said, "Of these three courses for separation, only the latter can be considered to be involuntary and it parallels in principle those provisions of law which apply to Regular officers in this regard."

During the fiscal year, the Marines also will lose almost 10,000 enlisted men. Officer strength, counting both Regulars and active duty Reservists, is expected to be 18,755 on 30 June 1955 and enlisted strength will be about 196,250 on that date, for a total Corps strength of 215,000.

Pentagon Secretariat Includes Majority Of Officials With Former Military Service

Recent appointments to the civilian secretariat of the Armed Forces have brought to 18 the total number of top-drawer Defense officials who have had former military service.

There are 28 Secretaries, Deputy, Under and Assistant Secretaries now on duty at the Pentagon. Among these, the Army has the largest percentage of officials (five out of six) who have served on uniformed duty. The Navy and Air Force each have four secretaries who have seen military service, and the Defense Department proper has five out of eleven secretaries who have been on duty with the Armed Forces at some time.

The secretariats of each of the military departments are not strictly partisan groups, however. The Army has one Assistant Secretary, Charles C. Finucane, who is a former Navy commander; the Navy has an Assistant Secretary, William B. Franke, who was for many years a member of the Army Comptrollers Civilian Panel; the Air Force has an

AF Tests K-9 Sentries For ZI Service

The Air Force is experimenting with the use of sentry dogs to help security troops and to perform special guard duties at bases in this country.

The Army has been using sentry dogs for some time, and the Air Force employs them at installations in the Far East and West Germany, but this will be the first time the dogs have been utilized as security checks at stateside air bases.

The experiment will be conducted by the Strategic Air Command. The program has been placed under the supervision of 1st Lt. William E. Mason, Training and Materiel Officer for SAC Provost Marshal, Col. Thomas C. Corbin.

Eight dogs have been assigned to the test program, and are currently undergoing training at Camp Carson, Colo. Eight air policemen from Barksdale AFB, La., have been placed on temporary duty at the same base for training in handling the dogs. The four-month test period will begin during November.

10,000TH GRADUATE

The 10,000th student graduated recently from Palm Beach AFB, Fla., where crews are trained to man and operate the Air Force's largest and heaviest transport planes for MATS, SAC, TAC and others.

He is A/IC Chester C. Maxey, a WWII B-29 Flight Mechanic who re-enlisted in 1951. Airman Maxey has been assigned to SAC's 305th Aerial Refueling Squadron at MacDill AFB, Fla.

COL. JACK L. CATTON (second from left), Commander of the 92d Bombardment Wing is greeted at Andersen AFB, Guam, by Brig. Gen. Joseph D. Caldara (left), 3d Air Division Commander, Guam Governor Ford Q. Elvidge, and Col. Richard I. Dugan, 6319th Air Base Wing Commander after the arrival of the 92d. Colonel Catton piloted the lead aircraft of the first flight of Air Force Convair B-36 bombers which arrived at Guam from Fairchild AFB, Wash., after a 30-hour, 18 minute non-stop flight. The B-36s are assigned to the Strategic Air Command's 15th Air Force and will remain on Guam for a 90-day training period.

Air Officers at Army-Navy Schools Kept Up-to-Date on Doctrine by 3894th Group

An organization unique in the Services is the 3894th School Group, at the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala.

The group was established four years ago by the Air University to carry out its function of monitoring Air Force personnel on duty as staff members, representatives, or students at some 23 non-Air Force Service schools. It is the headquarters for all Air Force personnel on duty at schools of other branches engaged in professional type education.

The 3894th maintains records, including 66s and field 201 papers, administers assignments, recommends selection, assignment and replacement at non - Air Force schools, but probably its most important duty is to act as a liaison agency. These officers, though away from Air Force activities, are kept constantly up - to - date on Air Force doctrine, policy and concepts. This is done by a weekly mailing of information, by direct answering of questions, by frequent visits from the Group Commander and his deputy (who fly 250 to 300 hours a year to perform this service) and by semi-annual meeting of all AF faculty members from non-AF schools at the Air University.

The Commander of the Group, Col. Charles Johnstone, also holds the unique distinction of commanding an outfit which includes 142 colonels, most of whom are senior to him. His entire command comprises about 431 individuals including 32 administrative NCO's.

Colonel Johnstone's deputy is Capt. Vincent W. O'Shea, who accompanies him on most of his frequent visits to non-Air Force Service schools. Also in the office is Lt. Daniel Stickel. A fourth officer has been authorized but will not report until next month. T/Sgt. W. W. Moore is sergeant major of the group.

The task of keeping the members of his command informed is a most important one, for Lt. Gen. L. S. Kuter, commander of the Air University, feels that it is vital for the Defense that Air Force representatives at Army and Navy Schools be kept constantly up-to-date in the information and help they furnish to the other services. He feels that a mutual understanding of each other's capabilities, limitations and method of operations is of the highest importance to the efficiency of the over-all efforts.

To do this, the Group keeps a constant flow of information from the major commands, such as SAC, TAC, ADC, and the overseas units as well as from the Air University, to the Air Force personnel with other Services. By this means they are able to tell the Air Force story to about 100,000 members of the other services.

Famed Arty. Center Librarian Will Retire After 40 Years' Service At Ft. Sill

At Ft. Sill, Okla., Morris "Mike" Swett, The Artillery School librarian since 1915, will retire this month after nearly 40 years of service.

A luncheon was held recently to honor his achievements. Maj. Gen. Edward T. Williams, USA, commanding general of The Artillery Center, presented Mr. Swett with the Ancient Order of St. Barbara, a scrapbook of letters from many ranking artillerymen who know him, and a certificate of achievement in recognition of his service.

Master Sergeant Swett has retired twice from the position of TAS librarian. In 1939 he retired from the position of librarian as a master sergeant with 30 years' service, but continued until this year in a civilian capacity.

He was a sergeant in the library at West Point when he was transferred to Ft. Sill. About 200 volumes comprised the TAS library at the time.

It has since grown to more than 108,000 volumes and is still growing by approximately 4,000 volumes per year. The

Army Circulars Changed Will Discuss Single Subject

Army Circulars will start coming out in new form beginning 1 Jan. 1955.

Effective on that date, the Army will issue Circulars which contain material covering only one subject limited to one-time action, or material of an informational nature.

The method of numbering Army Circulars also will be changed. Instead of present consecutive numbers assigned on an annual basis, future Circulars will be numbered with a basic number according to subject matter and a sub-number.

Amendments to Circulars will be published as numbered changes to the basic Circular.

The Army said Circulars will be distributed on the same "need to know" basis as ARs, but complete files will be neither authorized nor required.

Material of continuing application will be published in appropriate permanent media as ARs, FM's and TM's.

Set MSC Transfer Deadline

Procedures to be followed by active duty Army Medical Service Corps officers in applying for transfer to the Navy or Air Force are spelled out in AR 618-118, dated 14 Oct.

Basic authority for such transfers expires next July and the Army AG has notified all commands that applications will not be accepted if they are received later than 1 May 1955.

The Regulation also details the action to be taken by Navy and AF officers who wish to apply for transfer to the Army MSC.

Army Discloses Possibility Of 40 More Court-Martial Cases Against Former POWs

Approximately 40 cases involving former POWs in Korea are still under investigation by the Army and may result in court-martial charges.

In making the announcement this week, the Army said more than 3,000 officers and men who were returned to military control over a year ago were thoroughly interrogated and some 225 cases were found to warrant further intensive investigation.

These investigations resulted in the elimination of all but 40 of the cases. Appropriate disciplinary action in each case will be determined by Continental Army Commanders. There are less than a dozen of the cases in any one Army area.

In many of the eliminated cases, where the evidence did not warrant court-martial action, individuals were (or are in the process of being) separated administratively. Either general or undesirable discharges are given. So far, there have been 15 administrative separations, including 12 undesirable discharges.

The Army pointed out that no one in any position of authority ever promised U. S. soldiers immunity from prosecution for offenses committed while they were POWs in Communist hands. "None of the four POWs brought to trial thus far," the Army said, "was charged with failure to accept repatriation when it was first offered. In all cases, they have been charged with various acts of alleged misconduct and violations of laws governing military conduct while captives of the Communists in Korea."

Some of the offenses allegedly committed by various members of the group who have faced or who may face charges, include those of informing on fellow prisoners, causing their torture or death; making disloyal and seditious speeches denouncing the United States and intimidating other prisoners into like activities; collaborating with the enemy; teaching classes for enemy intelligence agents; selling food and medicine to starving and sick American POWs; and robbing bodies of fellow Americans who died in POW camps.

Thus far, four former Army POWs have been tried and convicted. They include Lt. Col. Harry Fleming who was sentenced to dismissal from the service and forfeiture of all pay and allowances; Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson, who received 10 years at hard labor; Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor who was confined at hard labor for life; and Pvt. Rothwell B. Floyd who got 40 years at hard labor.

Military Schools Program Set Up By Army To Provide New ROTC Training Program

The Army has established a Military Schools Division as a part of the ROTC program.

The new division, embracing 42 military schools, provides a revamped program of military instruction designed to utilize the unique training potential of each school. Eight military junior colleges and 34 military institute units are included in the program, which becomes operative with the school year 1955-56.

A six-year course of instruction will be established at each of the schools under the new Military Schools Training Program. This replaces the existing program of military instruction, in which the schools utilize a combination of courses primarily developed for civilian high schools and senior colleges.

Required attendance at summer camp will be accomplished between junior and senior college years. Graduates will be entitled to commissions as they receive their baccalaureate degrees.

Participating in the program are:

Military Junior Colleges

Valley Forge Military JC, Wayne, Pa.
Marion Institute, Marion, Ala.
Georgia Military College, Milledgeville, Ga.

Name any type of modern wing

thin, straight ...

or conventional ...

it has been built and flown by DOUGLAS

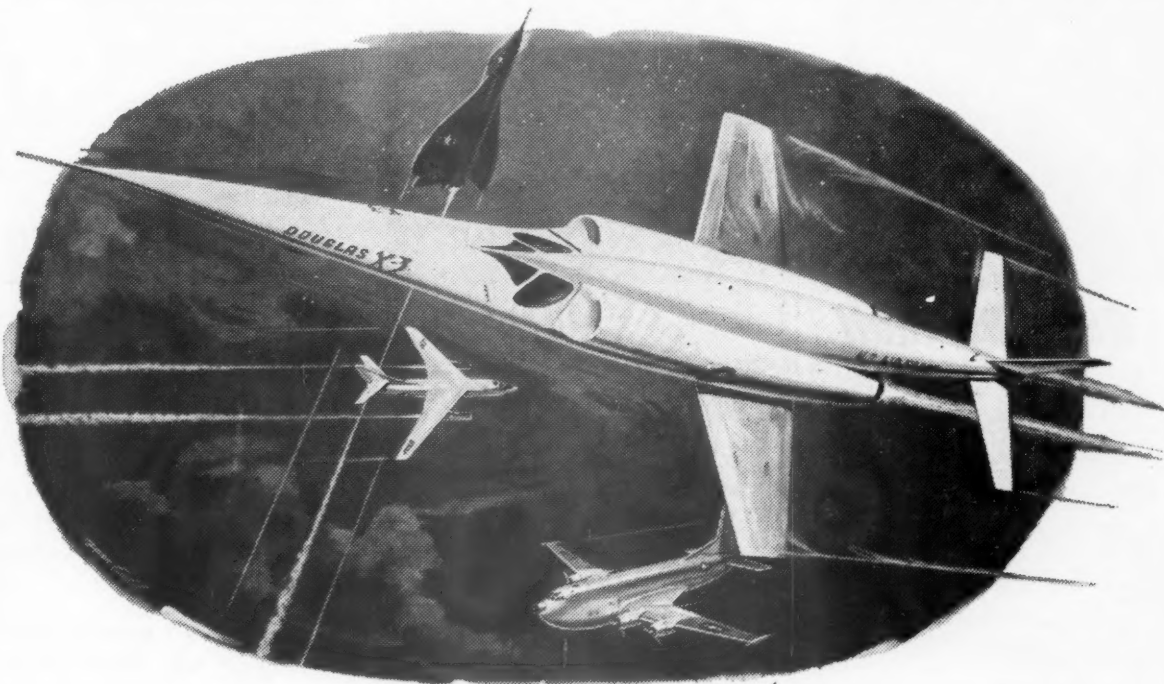

What is the ideal wing planform? Obviously, there can be no all-inclusive answer, for wings—like power plant or size—are designed to meet certain specific tactical requirements.

Thus a sweptback modified delta lets the Douglas F4D Skyray, first carrier plane to hold the official world speed record, come in slow for carrier landings. The broad conventional wings of a Douglas C-118A Liftmaster contribute to the range and lift a cargo carrier needs—while the Navy's carrier-based A3D Skywarrior bomber flies at near-sonic speed on sleek, tapering, sweptback wings. Again, the experimental stiletto-shaped Douglas X-3—though bigger than a DC-3 transport—has a wingspan smaller than a DC-3's tail.

Correct design of airframes to meet intended use contributes to Douglas aviation leadership. Building planes to fly farther and faster with a bigger payload is a basic Douglas concept.

BEDECK SHIPS FOR MORALE

Navy warships soon will sport ribbons, battle stars and citations, just like other old salts.

Under a newly authorized plan designed to benefit morale, the Navy has authorized skippers to paint insignia on their vessels in recognition of the war service performed by individual units.

Fleet commanders have been given authority to prescribe the shipboard location for the colorful insignia which may include:

- Replicas of ribbons to which the ship is entitled under the rules that apply to individuals.
- Replicas of the Navy Unit Commendation Ribbon.
- Replicas of the Presidential Unit Citation ribbon.
- Operation and engagement stars, displayed on the painted replicas, to which crew-members at the time of the operation are entitled.
- A star (for submarines only), to be displayed on the appropriate campaign ribbon replica, for each successful submarine patrol which is not already covered by an appropriate operation or engagement star.

At the same time, skippers were authorized to display in a suitable location inside the ship, a bronze plaque containing the names, ranks or rates, of all personnel awarded personal decorations for services in the ship, and a Historical Data Plaque giving a brief history of the ship and its predecessors.

Also approved for the adoption by a ship's company, is a crest or emblem to be used in connection with recreational and social activities. However, these will not be painted on or fixed to the exterior of the ship.

RAdm. Russell Named DCNO Administration

RAdm. George L. Russell, USN, Commander, Submarine Force, Pacific, since May 1953, has been named Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Administration).

RAdm. Leon J. Huffman, USN, Chief of Staff and Aide to the Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic, since February 1953, was selected to succeed Admiral Russell.

Admiral Huffman will be detached from his present assignment in January and will relieve Admiral Russell in March.

New orders for RAdm. Henry C. Bruton, USN, who has been serving temporarily as DCNO (Administration), and for Admiral Huffman's successor have not yet been issued.

Captain Kirn Wins Fight Against Death

Capt. Louis J. Kirn, USN, is reported on the road to recovery at the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital, after a near-death struggle with a rare disease.

Struck down on 1 March, "Bullet Lou," a famous Annapolis half-back of 20 years ago, and a Pacific flyer during WWII, was a complete paralytic within 48 hours. Navy doctors diagnosed his malady as Guillain-Barre disease, an "ascending type of paralysis" which begins at the extremities and works its way to the spine and brain. Captain Kirn's case was later complicated by pneumonia. He could not move, eat, or breathe without mechanical aids.

The combined skill of a team of Navy doctors, and his own will to survive, are credited with pulling him through the ordeal, and by the end of the summer, he was able to get about in a wheelchair. Captain Kirn is now undergoing physical therapy exercises. He is able to use crutches and swims to build up his strength.

Among those who led the fight to save his life are Bethesda doctors Capt. Anton Ikmund, Chief Medical Officer; Lt. Stephen R. Mills; Cdr. George E. Vaupel, Physical Therapy Specialist; and Lt. Martin E. Elipse, Chest Expert.

Capt. Andrew To Army Ordnance Proving Ground

Capt. John D. Andrew, USN, has assumed duties of Liaison Officer between the Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., and the Bureau of Ordnance, succeeding Capt. John H. Brandt, USN.

A 1932 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Captain Andrew commanded destroyers during WWII. Prior to his new assignment, he was in charge of the USS Montrose, an attack transport, for 16 months.

Cdr. Crawford Heads NSHA

Cdr. Charles L. Crawford, MSC, USN, has assumed command of the Naval School of Hospital Administration, National Nav. Med. Center, Bethesda, Md.

Marine Board Selects 1668 for Major Rank

The Marine Corps will revert 178 majors to captain before 30 December.

The action is the result of recently concluded selection board which named 1668 Regular and Reserve officers on active duty for advancement to major.

In making its selections, the board, headed by Maj. Gen. James A. Stuart, USMC, considered both permanent and temporary officers.

Dr. Seaton Named USAFIT Academic Director

Dr. Roy A. Seaton, Dean Emeritus of the School of Engineering and Architecture of Kansas State College, has been appointed Academic Director of the Air Force Institute of Technology.

A former consultant to the Commandant of the USAFIT, Dr. Seaton will be responsible for formulating educational policies and for providing administrative guidance and coordination of all USAFIT programs.

In WW I, Dr. Seaton was a Captain in the Office of the Chief of Ordnance, USA, engaged in the design of artillery ammunition. During WW II, he served as Director of Engineering, Science and Management Defense Training for the U. S. Office of Education.

AF O.K.'s New Quarters For Aviation Med. School

Construction of new quarters at Brooks AFB, Tex., for the USAF School of Aviation Medicine has been approved by Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott.

The go-ahead signal was given after a review of plans revealed that only the most essential facilities for urgently-needed aeromedical teaching and research would be included in the construction.

As now designed, the new quarters will include one large building for administration and research, and several smaller buildings for teaching and related subjects. Blueprints for the project will be completed by next spring. After construction bids, ground for the new center will be broken in the fall of 1955. It will be ready for occupancy two to three years later.

Reserve Airmen May Win Direct Officer Commission

Air Reserve airmen are now eligible for appointment to Reserve officer status, Continental Air Command has disclosed. Some 75 direct commissions for Air Reserve airmen in all fields have been authorized for Fiscal Year 1955.

To qualify for a direct commission airmen Reservists must meet age, moral and medical qualifications covered by Air Force Manual 36-5 and must not have an active duty obligation as defined in the Universal Military Training and Service Act.

In addition, to qualify for a direct commission, airmen Air Reservists must have completed at least 12 months' participation in Air Reserve Training Program categories A, B, C or D at application time.

They must also agree to continue participation in the Air Reserve Training Program and, in event of emergency, be willing to accept active duty in their officer grade.

Airmen applicants will not be required to apply for immediate active duty. No direct officer appointments will be made in grades above Captain.

Approximately 10 officer direct appointments have been authorized for the major air commands other than ConAC. ConAC's air forces will select the best qualified airmen within their allocated quotas.

Qualified Air Reserve airmen may apply for officer direct appointments through their Air Reserve units.

WINGS NO. 6

Lt. Col. Edward Laborde, USAF, assigned to the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., has been presented with honorary wings in the Brazilian Air Force—his sixth set of wings.

He also is the recipient of similar wings from Mexico, Argentina, Colombia and Cuba, in addition to being a veteran U. S. Air Force flier.

For his wartime service in Brazil, Colonel Laborde on 23 Oct. received from the Brazilian Ambassador in Washington, D. C., that nation's Orden de Merito Aeronautico medal, accompanied by a special citation. He also holds decorations from the countries mentioned above, Spain and France.

Air University Lengthens Some Courses; But Output Lags Behind Service's Needs

The rapid growth of the Air Force combined with the slower expansion of the facilities of the Air University at Maxwell AFB, Ala., has brought about a situation wherein only an average of one out of seven eligible Air Force officers are able to take the courses at the schools.

Educational experts believe that every career officer should have the benefit of the Squadron Officers Course, and 50 per cent of the eligibles should have the Command and Staff Course. As to the Air War College course, the present 14 per cent of eligibles attending is considered fairly satisfactory.

Past efforts to increase the output by shortening the courses have not worked out well. For example, in the Squadron

Officers Course, where the pinch is felt most severely, the course was shortened some time ago to 10 weeks, but experience has shown that the result was not up to expectations. So in the past year the course has been restored to 14 weeks, with a corresponding decrease in the number that can take the course with the School's limited facilities. Three such courses, with 750 students each, are now completed each year. Completion of the new buildings at Maxwell will permit some increase in this output, but still far short of what is considered necessary to meet professional requirements.

The same problem occurs in the Command and Staff course. This course formerly ran one semester, but experience showed that this was insufficient. This year the course was lengthened to a full scholastic year. The result was that the output was reduced to one half—from 1,000 graduates a year to 500. Next year when the new Academic buildings are completed the output can be restored to 1,000 a year, but with a full year's course instead of one semester. The result will be a much more thorough general line course with many specialties included—specialties which formerly were separate courses. This will give to officers of 12 to 15 years' service a more well rounded and complete professional education than was possible under the previous program, but will still mean a serious lag in the number of officers receiving it.

However, Lt. Gen. L. S. Kuter, Commander of the Air University, points out that the quality level of officers attending has increased immeasurably. At the present, he says, the level is the highest since the University was established.

One of the points that mitigate against getting more officers through the AU is the lack of facilities. Another is the fact that there is a limit on the number of officers who can be taken out of operational units to attend schools. Another is the inability to lay long range plans because no one knows what the future strength of the Air Force may be.

Last year the AU graduated 8,500 officers. This compares with the 60 graduates a year when it was the Air Corps Tactical School from 1932 to 1938.

AIRCRAFT SPEED ADVANCE TOLD

"Advances in aerodynamics, coupled with the development in electronics and engines, have lifted the roof off aircraft performance," according to Air Force Assistant Secretary Roger Lewis. Speaking before members of the National Security Industrial Association at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, on 21 October, Mr. Lewis said:

"Between WWI and WWII the average speed of aircraft increased 15 miles per hour per year. Through WWII until 1947 aircraft speed increased 25 miles per hour per year. Since that time, up to the present, aircraft speed has increased 165 miles per hour per year, and there is no end in sight."

there goes the

and it's

ALLISON POWERED!

In these days of watchful vigilance, the Navy's pilot-less Regulus built by Chance Vought does "triple defense duty."

Powered by Allison's J33 Turbo-Jet engine, the Regulus can be launched from submarine, surface ship or shore base.

In addition, the Regulus, in its test and drone versions, is designed to be "recoverable"—can be launched, then guided to a safe landing following completion of its mission.

The Regulus delivers maximum defense at multiple savings: (1) It can be utilized for a variety of purposes without the expense and effort of designing and building a separate missile for each requirement. (2) Its Allison engine is designed, manufactured and tested with considerable savings in critical materials and man-hours—without sacrifice of maximum reliability during its operational life.

No A-Threat in '06. As work continued at the Pentagon on the "career attractiveness" legislative package to be submitted to the Budget Bureau and Congress, the Defense Department and the Nation this week could well ponder implications of two disclosures:

1. The Atomic Energy Commission announced that Russia has been conducting a series of nuclear tests.

2. A Navy official said the reenlistment rate among U. S. sailors has tumbled to its lowest point since 1906.

To meet current fleet requirements and faced with the prospect of reenlisting less than 1 out of 10 of eligible sailors in the next year, the Navy reluctantly has been forced to shorten recruit training and reduce its school program. This will hurt efficiency.

The other Services also are faced with mounting problems in the utilization of manpower as a result of heavy losses. These losses can and must be stopped.

In a by-gone decade, there was time perhaps to train military personnel after outbreak of an emergency. This is no longer the case. The United States, with its global commitments, must have an Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps that is "ready-to-go" on moment's notice. Consequently, the retention of skilled personnel in much larger numbers than is now the case, is vital to national security. This is not 1906.

Increase the Regulars. The Defense Department should press vigorously the current inquiry into possibility of a major expansion in Regular officer strength. Furthermore, the Pentagon should utilize the influence of Secretary Charles E. Wilson in Administration councils to win approval from the reluctant Budget Bureau of something more than a mere token increase. Efficiency will be served by such an expansion and so will career attractiveness.

As was reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, a study is now under way on this problem. Although no figures are yet available, there is reason to believe the Services, notably the Army and Air Force, could absorb between 35,000 and 50,000 additional Regular officers. Of course, such an integration program would have to be conducted over an extended period of time in order to prevent a promotion "hump" and to assure careful selection of applicants.

The Navy and Marine Corps now have roughly 45 per cent of officer strength in the Regular establishment, which appears to be a reasonably satisfactory ratio. Such is not the case, however, in the Army (24 per cent) and Air Force (19 per cent). This situation does not make for career assignment stability, a problem which has concerned Mr. Wilson and which is now the subject of high-level study at the Pentagon. At the same time, there is lack of incentive for Reserve officers of the Army and Air Force, virtually all of whom now are, in effect, career officers.

The present ceilings on Regular officer strength in the Army (30,600) and Air Force (27,500) are not realistic in the light of present and foreseeable requirements. They should be revised during the next session of Congress.

The Army had wanted to expand its Regular officer strength initially by 6,000, but the Budget Bureau cut this to 4,080. Notwithstanding the reduction, that's a step in the right direction. The Air Force, confronted with a serious "hump" problem in its Regular ranks, should be given similar authority.

Temporary legislation which permits the Navy and Marine Corps to integrate Regulars should be made permanent.

The Government As Gouger. Defense authorities are promising that a request will be made to the 84th Congress for legislation which would result in reduced rental costs for thousands of Service families who now must occupy substandard quarters but who are required nonetheless to forfeit their entire quarters allowance. In many cases, this has led to a feeling among military personnel that the Government itself is gouging them at the same time that energetic efforts are being made to improve "career attractiveness."

The problem can be solved by legislation now in the works. It would permit the Secretary of Defense to refrain from withholding the entire rental allowance of a Serviceman when it is determined that quarters provided for him and his family are "substandard."

President Eisenhower has emphasized repeatedly the need to improve family housing conditions in the Services. Wherry units and construction of new Government-owned quarters are helping to alleviate the situation. But it will be some time before the housing shortage is ended. In the interim, many Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps families must live in substandard quarters, such as converted barracks. The Government, as landlord, should adjust rental charges accordingly. Given the facts, Congress can be counted on to grant approval to such a proposal.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—President Roosevelt has announced the end of martial law in Hawaii and the restoration of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

50 Years Ago—What has already become an insufferable nuisance is again annoying officials of the Army and Navy—the demand, for that is the form most of the requests take, for tickets for the Army and Navy game at Philadelphia in November.

90 Years Ago—No well informed person can deny that the remarks of several of our correspondents of late, relative to the necessity of an increase in the pay of officers of the Army, are just and well grounded. The request is made from no mercenary, or penurious, or discontented motives. It is asked as an act of simple justice that the Government make to its commissioned officers the same allowances as are made to its other servants, civil and military, in consideration of the greatly augmented prices of articles of necessity.

READERS' VIEWS

(Letters to the Editor must have author's name and address, but name will be omitted on publication if writer so states. Longer letters may be extracted for publication.)

How About Hat Braid?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In a recent article in the ARMY NAVY & AIR FORCE JOURNAL magazine, it was stated that the field (overseas) cap, designed for wear with the Army green uniform, will be worn unadorned by branch or officer braid.

The wearing of the branch color has long been recognized as a definite contribution to esprit and morale. The infantry blue, artillery red, and cavalry yellow have been the mark of fighting troops for years. The cap braid, descended most recently from the campaign hat cord, is a most convenient way for men to identify their units, or note (in passing) the branch identity of a unit or individual passing by.

There must be hundreds of miles of the various braids on hand in QM depots and civilian uniform houses. One of the aims of the "change in uniform" was to give the Army a snappier garb; the colorful braid denoting the various arms and services is certainly in keeping with this objective.

Armed Forces "Dividends"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In your 2 Oct. issue you stated that Secretary of Defense Wilson is looking for a better designation for those Service rights now generally referred to as "fringe benefits."

Why not call them "Armed Forces Dividends"?

The man whose heart swells with patriotism to the point where he makes a career of military life foregoes many of the comforts that are part of civilian life. When there is fighting to do he gambles his life when his civilian counterpart gambles his high wages, overtime, and special bonus on the stock market. The military man has little money to invest and less time to study the financial page of a newspaper. Therefore, it appears to me, that the privilege of saving at commissary stores and post exchanges are his return for the "time" he invests in the Armed Forces—his "dividend" for the part he took to keep this nation free.

Equalization

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

RE: Sec'y Wilson's request for a better name for "fringe benefits"! Why not Equalization Benefits or Equalization Standards? The many so-called benefits are but additions used to bring military in competitive standards with civilian industry.

Honorarium?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In view of SecDef's quest for a more suitable term than "fringe benefits" to describe the traditional allowances paid to Service personnel, it is suggested that the word "Honorarium" be considered.

By definition, honorarium is an honorary fee paid to a professional man as a courtesy in recognition of some service on which propriety forbids that a price be set.

Service Sons and the Academies

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The letter in the 9 Oct. issue on Academy Requirements by "Colonel Regular Army" instantly set me to wondering if perhaps I had written it myself and then suffered a loss of memory. In fact, within 10 minutes of reading it, I received a letter from my Stateside eldest son, thanking me for "the glowing things I said about him." It is obvious to me that my family think it was I who wrote that letter. I wish it were so, for the letter fits the case of my own son and myself like a glove. I subscribe to every word of it, so my own son can now truly consider that I have, indeed, said those same things on his behalf.

My son is also one of those "from military families, imbued with the traditions of our military heritage," who eagerly seeks "the chance to continue the family tradition in the Service." If somehow, in spite of his nearsightedness, he could enter and graduate from the U. S. Military Academy, he would be of the fifth consecutive generation to do so. That is a tremendously strong bond toward continuing in the Service, through thick and thin, particularly so in these times when "what's-in-it-for-me" seems rampant and measured in $$$$$. For the first time in our history, Academy appointments go begging.

I second Colonel RA's premise that "we should reappraise our policies governing physical standards so as to use this reservoir of talent," and I feel it is a great pity we have not already done so. How many potential MacArthurs, Clarks, Ridgways have we already turned away, needlessly? How many more will we overlook?

USMC Observes 179th Birthday 10 Nov.; Dedicate Giant Memorial To War Dead

THE Marine Corps War Memorial, the largest cast-bronze statue in the world, will be dedicated to Marine dead of all wars on 10 November, the 179th birthday of the Corps.

Created by Mr. Felix de Weldon, the giant group statue was developed and constructed for $850,000, including the cost of landscaping the Memorial site at the northern edge of Arlington National Cemetery.

The entire cost of the statue and Memorial site was donated by Marines, former Marines, Marine Corps Reservists, friends of the Marine Corps, and members of the Naval Service. The funds were raised under the direction of the Marine Corps War Memorial Foundation, Inc., a private organization. No public funds were expended for any phase of the Memorial's erection.

The Memorial Foundation was formed in 1949, after earlier efforts to raise funds were relatively unsuccessful. Brig. Gen. Robert L. Denig, USMC-Ret., was first President of the Foundation. He resigned in 1952 because his home was not in Washington, D. C., where he could devote maximum time to the project. Replaced by Maj. Gen. Merritt A. Edson, USMC-Ret., General Denig remained as a member of the Board. Col. Jean W. Moreau, USMC-Ret., is current President of the Foundation.

Other Foundation officers are: Arthur B. Hanson, Executive Vice President; John H. Dillon, Vice President; Alan Brown, Vice President; Robert L. O'Brien, Treasurer; and Ralph Wray, Secretary.

Based on Mr. Joe Rosenthal's famous photograph of the Iwo Jima flag-raising, the figures on the 100-ton statue are 32 feet high. They are erecting a bronze flag-pole 60 feet in length, which stretches 30 feet above them. The figures are placed on a rock slope rising about six feet from a 10-foot base. The overall height of the statue—from base to tip of the flag pole—is 78 feet.

The M-1 rifle carried by one of the figures is approximately 16 feet long, the carbines about 12 feet long. The canteen, if filled, would hold 32 quarts of water.

Six men from Company E, 2d Battalion, 28th Marine Regiment, Fifth Marine Division, raised the flag atop Mount Suribachi. They were: Sgt. Michael Strank, Cpl. Harlan H. Block, PFC Franklin R. Sousley, PFC Rene A. Gagnon, PFC Ira Hayes, and Pfc 2/c John H. Bradley, USN.

Sgt. Strank, Cpl. Block and PFC Sousley were later killed in the Iwo Jima fighting.

At the time of the flag-raising, E Company was commanded by 1st Lt. (now Major) Harold G. Schrier, who is currently stationed at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.

Survivors of the battle posed for Mr. de Weldon, who modeled their faces in clay. All available pictures and physical statistics of the three who died for their country were assembled and used to model their faces.

All six figures were first modeled in the nude so that the strain of the muscles of the men would be prominently shown after the clothing was molded onto the struggling figures. Before the clothing was added, the texture of the Marine Corps uniform was studied under a powerful magnifying glass which enlarged the weave of the cloth to the same scale as that of the statue. The texture revealed was molded onto the statue in order to break the reflection of light in the same way that the combat uniform does.

Later the whole statue was cut into 108 sections, shipped to the Bedi-Rassy Art Foundry, Brooklyn, N. Y., where it was cast into bronze. The casting took more than three years.

Bridge Across Seine To Honor Gen. Patton

Veterans of the U. S. Third Army united with the people of France recently in ceremonies near Fontainebleau, France, to honor the memory of General George S. Patton, jr., wartime commander of the Third Army.

The French government, represented by General Ganeval, laid the first stone of a modernistic bridge, to be named Pont Patton, across the Seine at Valvins, and the Third Army veterans erected a plaque on the spot reading:

"General George S. Patton, jr. Under his command, the U. S. Third Army supported by its French comrades crossed the Seine at this point 23 Aug. 1944. This plaque is placed by the U. S. Third Army veterans in memory of their commander."

U. S. Ambassador C. Douglas Dillon unveiled the plaque and spoke on behalf of the Third Army.

Designed by Welles Bosworth, American architect residing in Paris, the plaque was financed by donations from veterans who were with General Patton during World War II.

The fund raising campaign, begun last June and now successfully completed, was organized and directed by Lt. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, Commanding General of the Fifth Army, Ft. Sheridan, Ill., and Col. Charles E. Cheever, USA-Ret., General Manager of United Services Automobile Association, San Antonio, Tex. Liaison work on the plaque was done by Bernard S. Carter, President of Morgan & Co., Inc., Paris, France, a former member of General Patton's staff.

Leave Japan For U. S.

Col. Roscoe T. Nichols, jr., USAF, Chief of Staff of the Far East Air Logistic Force, and Col. Samuel R. Young, USAF, Director of Installations for FEALOG FOR, have left Japan for reassignment in the United States.

Colonel Nichols will become Commandant of the U. S. Air Force 2655th Air Reserve Center at Minneapolis, Minn., while Colonel Young will be reassigned as Director of Installations at Shaw Air Force Base, S. C.

COMMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Counting the Gains through the New Compact

THE high satisfaction manifested by Secretary Dulles on his return from the Paris conference is widely reflected in Europe, despite a few hostilities expressed—that Herr Adenauer surrendered too much of the Saar (a German oppositionist viewpoint) or that M. Mendès-France's gains were in some respects expressed with too little finality (a French oppositionist contention)—and the undeniable fact that none of the nine nations involved has yet provided parliamentary confirmation of its foreign minister's commitment.

Whatever the doubts among those nine nations, there is in the West an understandable contentment over one of the expressions of hostility, namely that which is audible from Moscow; if Moscow does not like the pact, it is a good one, for in its NATO aspect the agreement is undeniably a defense of the West against aggression from beyond the Elbe. It is a reliable touchstone.

AFTER THE NUMEROUS hot and cold breathings of the past month (with the future of European Union almost as uncertain as that of the Philadelphia Athletics) a measure of temporary doubt over the pact's real gains was to be expected. Yet a week's time for analysis has lessened, if anything, the initial skepticism. Herr Adenauer's prompt response to his few disgruntled countrymen (who were bitter about Germany's concessions) was effective at home and is worth emulating abroad—a simple reminder that both contestants have to make compromises if they are going to reach a permanently satisfying middle-of-the-road agreement. ("Every good German can support it.")

The 78-year-old Chancellor, who loyally supported the American program, as well as the European program, when other support was hard to find, has been in Washington conference this week, acquiring further information on American intentions which may give him useful ammunition for any further fights in the Bonn parliament. No German has done more to provide better foreign feeling toward his country and heartier foreign support for its continuing economic regeneration.

M. MENDES-FRANCE, moreover, exhibits a higher degree of political confidence than he emanated before. He proposes to include the Socialist party in his Cabinet as a result of some expected alterations, and Socialist acceptance of a portfolio would practically commit the party delegation of 105 to support of the Premier in the coming test-vote of confidence. Addition of that large bloc to the Premier's original coalition strength should be enough (as it was in the initial test of 12 October) to provide the margin of National Assembly votes needed for ratifying the pact in all its aspects. The Premier's confidence that this is the case is further evidenced by his plan to call for the vote in mid-December, by which time the Assembly (which is to convene in early November) should have finished with its interpellations.

THE MOSCOW PROPOSAL for a four-party meeting, to discuss German unification, has not, so far, made a great deal of a splash. The American reminder to Moscow is that there is small use in discussing German unification until the shamefully delayed decision on a peace for Austria has been reached. Herr Adenauer himself has shown little interest in a Russian proposal which is linked to advance agreement on immediate evacuation of all foreign troops—which would leave a still disarmed West Germany facing a well armed East Germany. That is one form of "freedom" Bonn does not wish.

Even many Frenchmen, among whom there long has been no doubt of disposition to think of a Franco-Russian mutual defense agreement as a satisfactory control of German aggressiveness, have lately come around to the belief that NATO, as now amplified, will serve that purpose more reliably. For history shows that the Franco-Russian compact has most patently failed to avert war.

RUSSIAN RESPONSE to the Paris treaty has been curious. It started out with warnings that the rearming of Germany would prove disastrous to European peace; it now has shifted to the theory that, rather, the pact per-

GEN. RIDGWAY HAILS MEN OF TRUST

General Matthew B. Ridgway, USA, this week dispatched a message to Europe which hailed the service of personnel in Trieste. The Chief of Staff said:

"Upon the completion of your duty in Trieste, I extend to all members of Trust my hearty congratulations.

"The splendid manner in which you have accomplished your challenging and exacting mission has reflected great credit upon the Army and upon the United States. You may feel justly proud of your many achievements in an assignment that has called for the highest type of dedicated service and soldierly conduct. You have enhanced the reputation of the United States Army in an important area of the world and have served your country with honor and distinction.

"I know that I speak for the men and women of the Army in expressing our deep appreciation for a job well done."

IN FRANCE, meantime, the adroit Premier has been quick to push his political advantage, and to disarm the considerable opposition (other than that of the Communists) which has consistently been arrayed against those necessary concessions that touched on a lessened sovereignty at home, a moderation of control in the Saar, and an upbuilding of West German military resources as regards trained manpower, command and staff, and arms-making potential. A broadcast was employed at the week-end to inform the French public of very large gains which had not been previously publicized and which did not appear in the text of the Nine-Power compact. These gains (which again are gains for West Germany as well) M. Mendès-France grouped together as evidence that the old Franco-German animosities are being overcome—expectation of future French investments in the Ruhr, German investments in North Africa, mutual benefits from the Saar compromise, cooperation in transport-canals which serve both countries, and the like.

petuates West Germany's domination by the "occupying" western powers. It is hard to have both arguments effective at the same time, and it is an odd thing that coordination among Russian agencies has been so erratic, for on the day when Mr. Vishinsky was pressing the first of those views, Pravda in Moscow was enunciating the second.

But that is a temporary phase, and it will be as well for the West to be prepared for a fully concentrated Moscow strategy which will be pressed with unremitting vigor against whichever is regarded as the Western powers' most vulnerable point. The Paris pact, which badly upsets Russia's schedule in many respects, will not be accepted meekly.

FAR EAST AFFAIRS, largely forgotten during the excitement over the question of what would happen after the demise of EDC and then over the possibility that its substitute, Western European Union, would meet with approval, returns very much to our consciousness this week. It begins to ap-

REVERSING AN EARLIER DECISION. Republican Senate leaders have informed the Pentagon that Assistant Secretaries holding recess appointments may be considered for confirmation by the Armed Services Committee during the special session called on 8 Nov. to consider the censure recommendation against Senator McCarthy (R-Wisc.).

NO PAY CAN BE GIVEN these appointees, who include Carter L. Burgess (Defense Manpower), Albert Pratt (Navy Manpower) and David S. Smith (Air Force Manpower).

MR. TREVOR GARDNER, whose nomination to be Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Research and Development was left in the Armed Services Committee when the Senate adjourned, must, under Senate rules, be renominated by the President.

AS HIS $50 PER DIEM as a consultant is about equivalent to an Assistant Secretary's salary, Mr. Gardner's name may not be again presented until the regular session of Congress in January.

IT IS NOT BELIEVED that the scores of general officer recess promotions will be submitted to the Senate for consideration at the 8 Nov. session. The 80 Air Force general officer appointments this week could be the last until the 84th Congress meets.

FACED WITH A 1 NOV. DEADLINE, many Service personnel with 18 years service or more have decided to "get their foot in the door" of the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act by electing the lowest possible choice—the one-eighth participation.

IT'S QUITE LIKELY that a considerable number will modify their initial election, either by raising or cancelling it, which can be done up to 5 years before retirement. After retirement, no changes can be made, which is true of most retirement-survivor plans.

ALTHOUGH THE COMPLICATED USCOA legislation is not completely understood by many who made the one-eighth choice, they felt this the wise decision, rather than to rule themselves and their families out of any USCOA participation by permitting the 1 Nov. deadline to pass.

ATOMIC WARFARE will make heavier demands upon military mappers, according to Maj. Gen. S. D. Sturgis, Jr., Army Chief of Engineers. He says that in any future war amphibious landings may be made simultaneously on hundreds of beaches to insure dispersion and mobility.

A NAVAL DOCTOR, Cdr. Reginald R. Rambo, MC, USN, has been admitted to practice before the U. S. Supreme Court. He holds a B.A. from the University of Arizona, '33; M.S. from there a year later; M.D. from Harvard, '38; and a law degree from George Washington University, '49.

THE NAVY MUST REVERSE the drastic drop in reenlistment rates or face the threat of Selective Service to fill its ranks. That's one reason Admiral Carney, CNO, has directed an "all-out" campaign to

A STINGING REVERSAL by the U. S. Court of Military Appeals in a decision affecting the sentence of a Navy seaman undoubtedly will result in modification of procedures used by permanent courts-martial in Naval districts. The "Supreme Court" of the Services assailed a situation in which VAdm. Theodore Ruddock, jr., USN-Ret., was responsible for preparing efficiency reports on several other members of a permanent court-martial board.

SAID THE COURT: "Since Admiral Ruddock made it a practice to show reports to the members reported on, they certainly knew what he thought of their conduct as court members. We are sure that these members possessed normal independence and fortitude, but human weakness frequently leads men to 'crook the pregnant hinges of the knee where thrift may follow fawning.' "

A PSYWAR MANUAL—its first—will soon be available in the Air Force. The data has been worked up by the Research Studies Institute of the Air University, under Col. Clinton W. Davies, USAF.

THE NAVY BAND ARRANGEMENT of "The National Anthem" has been designated as the official Defense Department version for use by all the Services. The Marine Corps Band arrangement of "Hail to the Chief" has been similarly selected.

A NEW AF COLLEGE opens on 1 Nov. It's the Air Command and Staff College at Maxwell AFB, Ala., under Brig. Gen. Lloyd P. Hopwood, which has been known as the Air Command and Staff School. At the same time, the Command and Staff Course, headed by Col. O. W. Lunde, will become a "School" as will the Squadron Officers Course, under Col. Jack S. Jenkins. Heretofore "directors," the two colonels will become "commandants."

raise the attractiveness of naval service.

THE ARMY AND AIR FORCE meantime are pleased with recent increases in reenlistments (still considerably below desired levels, however) and with initial enlistments. They hope the trend continues and, with full support of the Secretaries, are conducting vigorous programs to achieve that objective.

STILL A SOURCE OF DIFFICULTY is the rate of volunteers for flying training. Reports are that the Air Force is finding it tough to find adequate numbers of suitably qualified young men for the aviation cadet program. On the whole, however, top Air Force officials are greatly pleased with the success of recruiting following the establishment on 1 July of a separate AF Recruiting Service.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE JOBS are vacant for officers, according to Air Force officials. They say there is need for officers who want training in Arabic, Bulgarian, French, Hungarian, Italian, Korean, Mandarin-Chinese and Norwegian. Previous knowledge of the language is not a requirement.

A LONG-DISTANCE TRANSFER has been given Maj. Gen. Halley Maddox, USA. Previously assigned to duty in Korea, he is under orders now for a new post in Germany. There's speculation he may get the 9th Infantry Division, whose present commander, Maj. Gen. Donald P. Booth, will report to the Pentagon late this year.

want more RETIREMENT INCOME?

At the end of your active career you naturally want to be financially prepared. More and more people are finding that they can more adequately prepare for their retirement by investing for extra income in Mutual Fund shares.

Mutual Funds are even more attractive now as the new tax law on dividends applies to most of them. Besides an exemption of the first $50 of dividend income (or $100 for husband and wife under certain conditions) a direct credit against tax of 4% of any balance is provided.

Brown, Madeira & Co. is comprised of people thoroughly familiar with the need of planning for adequate retirement income. With our help, thousands of civilians and service personnel—people like yourself—have begun providing for a sounder financial future through the purchase of Mutual Fund shares.

Learn how a Mutual Fund purchase plan can help you supplement your fixed-dollar retirement income. Just mail a postcard with your name and address for our booklet, "The Modern Way to Invest." There is no obligation.

ELECTRIC BOAT

dynamics for defense

On May 17, 1897, the New York Times reported the launching of the "Holland"—"the little cigar-shaped vessel... which may or may not play an important part in the building of the navies of the world..."

Since then, Electric Boat has built 226 submarines for the United States Navy and more than 100 for friendly foreign nations. Today, EB leads in the application of nuclear energy to propulsion with the world's first atomic-powered vessels, the U.S. Navy submarines "Nautilus" and "Sea Wolf".

For 74 years, divisions of Dynamics have pioneered in hydrodynamics, electrodynamics, aerodynamics and nuclear dynamics. In 1954, under the group concept of "Dynamics for Defense", they continue to make new and notable contributions to the military security and industrial progress of the nation.

HITLER'S SECRET CONVERSATIONS

Introduction by H. R. TREVOR-ROPER
Taken from carefully selected, actual shorthand notes of the Fuehrer's "off the record" statements during the critical years of 1941-1944, this book reveals the twisted mind of the maniacal politician (who also regarded himself as a military genius) and his fatal flaws as a tactician. A document that should be studied scrupulously by every student of military affairs.

THE UNDECLARED WAR 1940-1941

by WILLIAM LANGER and S. EVERETT GLEASON
Two military experts who are also excellent historians trace the events, problems and developments of the fateful years of 1941 and 1942; the planning and execution of the lend-lease program; the success of Nazi conquests; our clash of interests and objectives with the Japanese; and all the other factors which led to our actual participation in World War II.

THE MILITARY GENIUS OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

by BRIG. GEN. COLIN R. BALLARD
With objectivity and profound historical insight, Gen. Ballard portrays Lincoln as an excellent, if unconventional, military strategist. He presents indisputable evidence that Lincoln's grasp of military matters matched his statesmanship and dispels the legend that the 16th President "prolonged the war."

Retail price, $5.00

PERSONAL MEMOIRS OF U. S. GRANT

Edited by E. B. LONG
Through Grant's keen eyes, the planning of the battles, campaigns, strategy, logistics, recruiting—the whole Civil War—is brought into sharp relief. Completed only days before his death, the Memoirs give you the full account of this able yet simple man who rose from the masses to lead the Union armies.

Retail price, $6.00

BOLIVAR

by SALVADOR de MADARIAGA
Intensely dramatic, this monumental combination military history and biography is a work of compelling interest. Madariaga vividly portrays the life and achievements of the man whose courage, daring and military genius broke the bonds of Spanish oppression and won independence for several South American nations.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

THE Navy Relief Society of Washington sponsored the Starlight Ball 22 and 23 Oct. in the Sail Loft of the U. S. Naval Gun Factory, and, at last accounting, the committee had reason to believe they had cleared over $20,000. This will be used for the benefit of Navy and Marine Corps personnel and their families in time of emergency.

Leading the list of distinguished officers and civilians representing the Navy were the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles S. Thomas, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Mrs. Arthur W. Radford, and the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Robert B. Carney, with Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., attending, while General Shepherd was doing the honors at the Navy Relief Ball in Philadelphia.

Following a salute from the U. S. Marine Drum and Bugle Corps and the Naval Ceremonial Guard, Rear Adm. Tom B. Hill, chairman of the D. C. The performance drew rounds of enthusiastic applause for the talented representatives gathered together from stations and bases throughout the Navy by Mr. Sullivan.

Among those receiving congratulations for a job "well done" were the co-chairmen of the decorations committee, Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Crommelin. Few Navy people familiar with the Sail Loft, as a work room for the Navy Band, would have recognized it. Army Sounds Caution Note on Concurrent Travel In '54, Early '55 to Europe

The Army, concerned over a misunderstanding of the recent announcement on concurrent travel to Europe, emphasized this week that not all families will be able to travel together throughout '54 and well into 1955. But it advised immediate inquiry by personnel upon receipt of orders to Europe.

The Army said that many individuals jumped to the conclusion that all families making advance application for concurrent travel would receive approval. "This is not so," the Army stated, pointing out that a housing shortage still exists in many parts of Europe.

The Army said:

"The purpose of the 'advance application' is to determine if quarters are available in the area of assignment. Availability of quarters in any one location is dependent on many factors, such as estimates of the number of quarters required and construction schedules.

"There are almost 5,000 families whose sponsors are already in Europe for whom no quarters are yet available, but who will have first priority as quarters are completed.

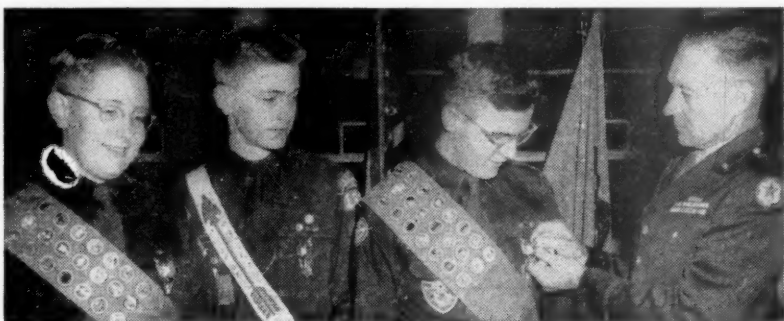

"Because the completion date of quarters will extend over a period of months well into 1955, and the situation varies from place to place, some families can travel concurrently now while others must wait. Therefore, the system of 'advance application' must be used during the transition period. Until a reply is received to an advance application, it is not known whether concurrent travel may be effected. USAREUR is striving to achieve the goal of all, or nearly all, families traveling concurrently to Europe in the first half of the calendar year 1955, the Army reported.

It should also be understood that officers or enlisted men of the top three grades can not be assigned to duty at any one place just because quarters are available there. Each individual must be assigned according to his MOS and qualifications. This involves considerable paperwork, and it is only after each assignment is made that it can be determined if quarters are available for the individuals at their duty station when they arrive there.

"The Army has gone to great effort to make concurrent travel possible for as many families as the availability of quarters and other factors will permit. Instructions have been issued on the procedures to be followed, but it is necessary that everyone concerned understand them.

"Personnel receiving orders to Europe should inquire at duty stations as to exactly what to do. Inquiry should be made at once, because any delay could prevent families from being able to accompany sponsors. However, it must be remembered that everyone cannot travel concurrently and that requests may necessarily be disapproved."

15,000-Foot Runway At Edwards AFB Dedicated

A 15,000-foot "runway of the future" was dedicated at the Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Calif., as a feature of the recent ARDC Commanders Conference.

Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Power, USAF, Commander of the Air Research and Development Command, and Brig. Gen. J. S. Holtner, USAF, Commander of AFOTC, cut a ribbon opening the way for an F-100 "Super Sabre" to make the first flight from the concrete runway, the longest in the U. S.

However, the runway will not be in operational use for some time until approaches and taxiways are finished and landing lights installed. The actual runway is 15,000 feet long, but an 1800-foot overrun to Rogers Dry Lake will permit use of approximately five additional miles of lake bed when it is dry. The concrete is 300 feet wide with wide shoulders cleared on each side.

AF OFFICER'S BRACE WINS PRAISE

An Air Force officer has developed a brace for cerebral palsy victims which may revolutionize the brace-manufacturing industry from a custom-tailored business to one of mass production.

The brace developed by Maj. Werner J. Iller of the Air Research and Development Command's Wright Air Development Center, Ohio, is 65 per cent lighter than similar braces, can be mass produced at a much lower price than braces currently cost, allows for six inches of growth, and is more comfortable for the wearer.

Although the brace was designed specifically for cerebral palsy victims, it possibly can be used by victims of other crippling diseases and injuries. At least, Major Iller said, the principles evolved could be adapted to other types of braces.

Medical authorities at the Wright-Patterson AFB Hospital were so impressed with Major Iller's blueprints for the new brace that they ordered a special one constructed for test purposes.

Squadron Set-Up To Test Turbo-Prop Transports

MATS has organized a special squadron to service-test six turbo-prop powered transport aircraft.

Named the Service Test Squadron (Turbo-Prop) Provisional, the unit will be based at Kelly AFB, Tex., under the command of the MATS Continental Division's 1700th Air Transport Group.

The squadron will test new type power plants under routine operations, accumulating engine flying hours to aid in the development of turbo-prop engines.

The squadron will be assigned six aircraft, all equipped with the new turbo-prop engines. These aircraft are two twin-engine Convair YC-131Cs, two four-engine Boeing YC-97Js and two four-engine Lockheed YC-121Fs. In all cases, the aircraft will be slightly modified versions of the current Air Force transports, but powered with the new plants.

During the testing program, each aircraft will be utilized, insofar as the tests permit, in routine domestic operations.

MATS personnel attached to the squadron will receive on-the-job training at the factories of the engine and aircraft manufacturers and at Edwards AFB, Calif., prior to actual assignment to the aircraft, the first of which is expected to be assigned to the squadron next year.

Army Lets 'Copter Contract

The Bell Aircraft Corporation Helicopter Division, Ft. Worth, Tex., has received a contract to inspect and repair "as necessary" 70 of the Army's H-13 Bell helicopters, the work to be done at Bell's Fort Worth facilities between now and next June.

The Army will transfer about nine H-13 helicopters a month for inspection and, if it is needed, repair. All of the helicopters involved will be Bell H-13's and include Models B, C, D, E and perhaps a limited number of G's.

The program was recently adopted by the Army in the belief that regular inspection and maintenance of aircraft as necessary will keep the craft in constant readiness and will cost less than the old method of pulling the helicopters out of service for major overhaul after every 600 hours of flight time.

GM Defense Deliveries 24 Per Cent Below 1953

Deliveries of General Motors defense products during the first nine months of this year fell 24 per cent below the level for the corresponding period of 1953.

Several reasons were offered by GM for the decline: the completion of a number of contracts, termination of others, and stretching-out of delivery schedules.

Deliveries for the first nine months of 1954 totaled $1,058-million. Third quarter deliveries amounted to $320-million, or 30 per cent below the same for a year ago.

Net unfilled defense orders, which amounted to $3.3 billion at the beginning of 1953, were reduced by one-third to $2.2 billion by the end of that year. On 30 Sept. 1954, net unfilled defense orders totaled $1.4-billion, a decrease of almost 60 per cent since the beginning of 1953. Currently, GM's defense production has declined to less than 15 per cent of its total sales volume as against nearly 20 per cent in 1953 and 1952.

pear that Secretary Dulles long ago took up quietly with M. Mendes-France the issue of native troop-training in Indo-China, which the United States, under certain clearly stated conditions, was prepared to undertake months ago, but about which circumstances have forbidden action. For this week's word from Paris is that, in principal, M. Mendes-France now favors the American training program, which if fully accepted and undertaken must be on a quite different basis from that conceived last spring.

AT THAT TIME it was anticipated that Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, named as the new head of the U. S. Military Advisory Group in Indo-China, would be allowed to organize there a complete training program; the initial group of 300-odd officers and non-coms who went overseas to serve under him was patently designed as an instruction force, to be supplemented with a later contingent.

But France's reluctance to yield the training responsibility of her somewhat elusive colonial to another nation, and then the grave reverse at Dienbienphu, followed by the enforced surrender of the rich Delta region in the north, and a treaty delimiting the military activities of a truncated Vietnam—all this prevented even a start at the ambitious American training project.

THE PRESENT POSSIBILITY would seem to be a training project which would indeed be directed by General O'Daniel, and participated in by the members of the enlarged USMAG. But the Americans are not numerous enough by far to engage in the down-to-squad training of a new and (one gathers) somewhat reluctant force; they rather could only indoctrinate the unit-trainers, who then would carry on.

The unit-trainers would necessarily be some 3,000 French officers and non-coms already on the spot; most of them have had long experience at arms, and have the added advantage of familiarity with Vietnam dialects and customs. This will be an interesting and, one hopes, a profitable substitute for the old plan.

TOO MUCH must not be expected, and it would be unwise to make a comparison with the superb results from the ROK training program in Korea. The ROKs were anti-communist to start with, and so were the regions from which they came. They were inspired by a tough old President who sometimes made trouble for us, to be sure, but of whose tenacity we never had any doubt. And they liked to fight anyway.

Nothing of the sort exists in Vietnam, and General O'Daniel, who likes hard work, will find plenty of it. His job will be a long one, and the question is how long will fate, plus Red policy, allow us for our enterprise.

RESULTS of the third series of officer promotion examinations reveal that 5.7 percent failed to make passing grades.

This figure represents a two percent increase of failures over the May series. The peak of failures, however, was reached in January when 7.3 percent of the participating officers did not attain the required marks.

Of the 1441 officers who took the September series, 82 were failures.

The following table gives a breakdown of the number of officers who took examinations in 13 subjects and the number who failed to qualify in each test of the third series.

Examination	No. Officers Participating	No. Officers Failing Exam.
Aids to Navigation	33	0
Communications	6	2
Damage Control (Practical)	304	7
Law Enforcement	173	20
Marine Navigation I	118	2
Military Justice	25	6
Naval Machinery (General duty)	96	4
Ordnance and Gunnery	311	36
Seamanship	333	5
Shipboard Electrical Systems	21	0
Diesel Engines	5	0
Engr. Operation & Maintenance	1	0
Naval Machinery (Special duty)	15	0

To date a total of 4548 examinations have been given with a total of 250 failures, or 5.5 percent.

The fourth series of examinations will be given on 10 Jan. 1955.

Officer Exam Note

Coast Guard Headquarters calls attention to the fact that temporary lieutenants who recently were given permanent status in that rank are now under a new officer promotion examination schedule. These officers move automatically to Column 3 of Table 1b of Personnel Circular No. 17-53 for future tests.

Since the two examinations in this column for 10 Jan. and 9 May 1955 were taken in 1954 by this group, the following substitutions are authorized: 10 Jan. 1955 Communications or Aids to Navigation in place of Navigation I; Damage Control (Prac.) or Ordnance and Gunnery in lieu of Seamanship.

President Eisenhower has appointed 13 commissioned and 17 warrant officers to the ranks indicated for temporary service with dates of rank of 1 November.

Air Force Attacks Its Number One Problem—Manpower

in Headquarters USAF, a Reenlistment Branch was organized and assigned to the Personnel Procurement Division during June of this year. The Branch consists of eight officers and three Master Sergeants and acts as a monitoring rather than an operating agency. A Field Management Section consisting of three teams, each composed of an officer and a master sergeant, have been visiting Air Force Bases throughout the ZI. Acting as sales representatives, the teams have visited over 75 Bases since 1 July this year. By the end of next March, the teams will have visited each ZI Air Base at least once. The purpose of the visits has been to seek and exchange the best ideas concerning reenlistment and to acquaint the field with the aids that are available to them in meeting the problem. The best ideas observed by the teams are passed from Base to Base. In addition, the teams have obtained much valuable information that is being utilized in the development of the overall USAF Reenlistment Packaged Program; a subject which will be mentioned later.

Information, ideas and recommendations obtained in the field by the teams are furnished to the Reenlistment Plans and Policy Section who study and staff the items for possible change in existing policy. It is at this point that the functions of the Reenlistment Branch cut across many of the offices of the Air Staff. As an illustration, one of our top priority projects today is that of championing the cause of the non-commissioned officer. In our efforts to make him a true leader, we are leaving no stone unturned in seeking additional ways and means of increasing authority and enhancing prestige for the noncommissioned officer.

All Studies Evaluated

Initially, a voluminous number of studies on a variety of aspects of reenlistment, conducted by numerous agencies, was collected and evaluated. Each agency that had ever written anything about or which had any interest in reenlistment was identified. Representatives of these agencies convened in Washington for a period of 45 days and summarized all studies and facts about reenlistment. Findings were presented in such a manner that they could be applied operationally. In addition, guide lines were established for the initiation and coordination of future research in this area. As a result of the conclusions reached from an analysis of the studies already on hand, six specific research projects were assigned to the Personnel and Training Research Center at Lackland Air Force Base. Through these projects, we expect to be able to evaluate many factors which motivate the individual toward an AF career.

In coordination with representatives of the Major Commands, statistical reporting procedures have been finalized. Within a very short time, a monthly report will be published indicating reenlistment trends and rates. Rate will be shown by both Major Command and Air Force Base in order that commanders may compare the success of their efforts against those of like organizations.

"Packaged" Base Program

Within the next month a revised AFR will be published, setting forth basic Air Force policy relative to Reenlistment. The regulation will set forth broad guidance to commanders and is designed to establish a unity of effort between all Major Commands. This regulation will be the forerunner to, and provide the framework for, the "packaged" Base program.

At the present time, the Reenlistment planners are preparing a "packaged" Base reenlistment program, designed primarily to assist commanders at Base level in the conduct of their local reenlistment programs. The program will embrace all aspects of career enhancement, beginning with the time a man enters the Air Force and continuing throughout his entire service. All of the recommendations submitted by Major Commands, together with the information gathered in the field by the Field Management Representatives is being considered in the development of this project. The Reenlistment planners are being assisted in the preparation of the "packaged" Program by professional writers and illustrators from the Agency handling the Air Force Recruiting Advertising Contract. Target date for distribution of the program to the field is shortly after 1 January 1955.

All Media Cooperate

From a public relations standpoint, both internal and external media are utilized to help us with the problem. Many important personnel policy changes affecting the individual have been made during the past three months. Excellent coverage on these significant policies has been given by the Service Journals. Many other significant changes to existing policy are being studied and will be reported to the field as they develop. Externally, we are reaching the public through articles in national magazines, and by speeches of the Secretary of the Air Force before key civic and industrial organizations.

The Office of Information Services, Headquarters USAF is assisting by forwarding timely reenlistment information to Base information offices for use in local newspapers. Increasing emphasis has been placed upon the Community Relations Program, aimed toward soliciting the aid of civic groups in helping to increase the individual prestige of Air Force people. Finally, the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce recently accepted the manpower procurement problem in the Air Force as a nationwide project of the organization during the coming year.

The subject of reenlistment is a continuing problem that must be shared by each career officer and NCO. It is so closely allied with leadership that the two terms are practically synonymous. Through a sustained and concerted effort on the part of all of the Air Force family, we will reach our goal of making the United States Air Force an increasingly attractive and prized career.

Extension Course May be Promotion Requirement

large enrollment, the Institute is administered by a small staff of 10 officers, 29 airmen, and 93 civilians. As much as possible of the Institute's work is done on machines, but a great deal of individual correspondence and attention is necessary. So economically is it conducted that recent reports have revealed a cost of only $11.10 a year per student.

Actual current enrollment is 100,792, about half of whom are Regulars and half Reserves, half officers and half airmen. Time for completion of the courses varies between students and courses. The squadron officers course, for example, which runs 14 weeks at the resident school, takes about one year in the ECI, but may vary one way or other according to the student's available time and application.

The courses are not snaps. Currently, more than 30,383 examinations are processed each month with from 3 to 4 percent failures. In addition many students are dropped for failure to turn in a reasonable number of lessons in a given time. The top 10 percent of the graduates get special letters of commendation.

KNIVES FROM IKE

Airmen at Lowry AFB, Colo., who had a direct connection with White House activities during the President's eight-week summer vacation, have been presented engraved knives and letters of appreciation.

The knives, gifts of President Eisenhower, are engraved: "DDE Oct. '54." They were presented to air policemen, drivers, photographers, press assistants and other personnel by Brig. Gen. John T. Sprague, USAF, Lowry base commander, for the Chief Executive.

Realign Army Command in Europe

of chief of staff and deputy commander of the Eighth Army in Korea.

There is also a good possibility that General McAuliffe's successor will come from the United States, in which case the prospects would appear to be Lt. Gen. George H. Decker, Comptroller; Lt. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Research; and Lt. Gen. Williston B. Palmer, newly named Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics.

Aside from the forthcoming command changes in Europe, the Army, as well as the other Services, is anxiously awaiting word on whether or not General Ridgway will be kept on active duty beyond next March, when he will attain the age of 60 and have more than 35 years service and over 5 years in permanent two-star rank.

Secretary Stevens may take the occasion of the Army Commanders' Conference at the Pentagon in late November to make known the decision regarding the Chief of Staff.

It is believed that General Ridgway will be kept in the top Army post beyond the March date and that this will be made known well in advance.

General Hoge's retirement is predicted for January because that is when he will complete a year's extension of his active duty service beyond his previously scheduled retirement in 1954. He will be 61 on 13 Jan.

When he retires in January or shortly thereafter, General Hoge will bring to a close a distinguished military career which began with his appointment to West Point in 1912.

Gen. Ruffner To Europe

Army observers are speculating regarding the assignment that will be given Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, Commanding General, U. S. Army, Pacific, who has withdrawn a request for voluntary retirement at the end of November, following a conference with Secretary Stevens at the Pentagon.

General Ruffner will be transferred to new assignment with USAREUR, Secretary Stevens said.

Lt. Gen. Bruce Clark has been assigned to command USARPAC and is scheduled to leave for Hawaii in December.
